Operation Tristan Spotlight

Bob and Christine Fields were living in this home, raising their three year old grandson, Tristan, at 126 Crawford Rd., Allendale, SC until the afternoon of March 15, 2008. That is when one of the several tornadoes that ripped through South Carolina smashed into their home. The house is a total loss, having been moved off the foundation suffering major structural damage. The current structure will need to be demolished and replaced with a new home. They owned this home and fortunately have no mortgage payment. Unfortunately, since there was no mortgage they had no insurance. Also, there is no possibility of Federal or State aid since the area was not declared a Disaster Zone.

The Fields are both employed, Bob with the City of Allendale and Christine with the SC Department of Transportation. Christine has major medical problems requiring several expensive prescription drugs. They are currently living with relatives, about an hour's commute from Allendale. This requires them to spend a major portion of their take- home pay on gasoline. Without outside help they are in an impossible rebuild situation.

Not only has the house been ripped apart but the family has as well. Tristan is living with relatives in Savannah. Of course, he doesn't understand all this and just keeps asking, "Grandpa, when are we going home?" This is a picture of Tristan's toy, his Radio Flyer wagon, or at least what is left of it. It has now been replaced by kind donors. If only it were that easy for the home!

The new home!
